1. APON Education Program

Every child has the right to receive a basic education. But unfortunately, in Bangladesh, hundreds of thousands of children are being deprived of a basic education because of their socio-economic condition and lack of awareness. According to the National Child Labor Survey 2013, about 34,00,000 children are engaged in child labor.

It is in this backdrop that the APON Education Program commenced its journey with only 7 students in January 2008. Initially, there was a lot of skepticism and misgivings regarding the usefulness of the classes. However, with their sincerity, honesty, dedication and diligence, APON School teachers have managed to gain the trust and faith of the guardians of the students. As a result, the number of students increased from only 7 children in one centre to over 500 children in 17 centers by the end of 2018. Classes at APON are always followed by refreshments. For new students, refreshments are invariably the principal incentive to attend classes regularly. It is noteworthy that within a few years of the inception of the Project, APON students have multiplied several times and the progress is more than evident. Most of the children can now read and write and do basic math and calculations. The School has provided the much needed recreation that these children deserve and trips to the zoo, art competitions and other events have been organized for them on a regular basis.

We hope to provide these children with vocational training as they grow older so as to give them greater financial independence and a better life. Since the commencement of its Education Program, APON has provided basic education among 3614 underprivileged children.

1.1 APON Education Program for Underprivileged Children

In 2019, APON operated 16 School Centers for more than 500 underprivileged children in different parks and slums of Dhaka city. Since 2015, APON has also been operating two centers at Gagramari in the Sundarban region of Shymnagar, Satkhira. Most of the students of Gagramari branch come from disaster affected families. These students are currently receiving basic education in English, Bengali and Mathematics. At the same time, the children receive basic health and hygiene awareness. Nutritious foods were distributed twice a week for their mental and physical development. APON also arranges cultural events and programs on a regular basis for the recreation and development of the children. Among its 500 students, about 183 students have been admitted this year in formal schools.

Basic Features of the Education Program 2019

On completion of the program, we found that 361 out of 521 students participated in the final examinations held by APON. As many as 225 students got A+, which is the highest attainable grade. APON is currently helping the children to get admitted in formal schools. As regards children who were unable to perform well during the exams, APON is providing further schooling for their development.

1.2 APON Open-Sky School for Underprivileged Children

Now, about 50 working children are receiving education at a number of open-sky school centers located in Dhanmondi Lake area and Ramna Park. Regular attendees of these centers are between 15 and 25. APON seeks to bring about a positive change to the lives of street children by 'taking education to the children' in their working places. APON considers it an achievement that many of its students are now dreaming of being teachers, doctors, engineers and civil servants one day.

7 .Climate Adaptation and Disaster Support Program

Bangladesh is one of the most vulnerable nations to the impacts of climate change. According to the Global Climate Risk Index 2013, as a result of global warming and an unusual weather pattern, every year Bangladesh ranks amongst the worst victims of natural calamities causing massive loss of lives and extensive damage to flora and fauna. Currently, Bangladesh tops the list of countries most at risk as a result of climate change over the next 20 years (German Watch, 2013). It is now established that climate change has adverse effects on the health, nutrition, education and emotional and social wellbeing of a child. Such adverse impact is often exacerbated by development pressures at the local and household levels, such as rising food prices, spread of disease and illness, and competition over scarce natural resources. Unfortunately, there have been little or no studies in Bangladesh focusing on the impact of climate change on children.

At present APON is working with climate vulnerable children and women by providing basic education and nutrition support. APON Foundation is also planning to work in this field by conducting surveys in the coastal regions of Bangladesh to assess the nature and scale of climate change impact on the children in the coastal regions of the country.

APON is also trying to raise awareness about environment and climate change impact among its students.
